

YOUR MUSEUM—AN INSPIRATION TO LEARNING AND PROGRESS

THE TOLEDO MUSEUM OF ART • MUSEUM NEWS

WHY THE MUSEUM CONTINUES TO GROW

There are three reasons why your Museum continues to grow and to serve better the citizens of our community:

First, the Museum's financial base is sound. Over the years, the income from the wisely-invested Libbey Estates has created a foundation upon which all Museum resources have been built. But these restricted funds, so basic to our operation, now only provide 26% of our annual operating budget.

Second, as more and more individuals, companies, and foundations learn of the high quality of the Museum's programs, they have joined in helping the Museum to continue its educational services. From family memberships in the Museum (numbering near 7000) to President's Council members (nearly 275) our contributors hope, as one recent donor put it, "that our participation may help the Museum to sustain and continue the excellence of its services to our community". Many others contribute their time, offering volunteer support to our education programs, membership and endowment campaigns.

Third, experienced Museum management continues to adapt, to revise, to build for the future. There are new programs, new improvements, additional renovations to an aging building all of which are guided on a well-chosen priority system administered by an excellent staff.

Thanks to these factors, The Toledo Museum of Art continues to be one of America's few major art museums to which admission is still free, and which offers area children free art and music education. And as long as the combination exists, the Museum will enrich the cultural life of our region for generations to come.

THE MUSEUM'S GROWTH IN 1975

Many of the 144,000 children who visit the Museum learn about the collections from free guided tours.

Ronald Berman, chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities, recently stated that the museums of America are now rivalling universities as centers of culture, scholarship and education. "Museums are dedicated to serving man's imagination, creativity, values, history and culture...they are the most logical of mechanisms for the use of an informed public," he said. Few museums have been so thoroughly designed and programmed to provide the public with this kind of service as is The Toledo Museum of Art. Nearing its 75th anniversary next year, your Museum looks forward to continuing to be an ever more effective resource for individuals, groups and institutions.

Almost 400,000 people visited the Museum during the past year. We worked hard to have each visit count for something substantial. In order to accommodate more visitors with greater ease, the Grove Place parking lot was almost doubled in capacity. Inside the Museum, a passenger elevator, a ramp for wheelchairs and restrooms for the handicapped were installed with funds contributed by Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Alexander. A lovely new park is being created to the east of the Museum, which will add grace to the Museum and green space to our Old West End neighborhood. We are indebted to Abe Plough for a major gift to develop this park, as well as to a group of major contributors in our community who agreed to match Mr. Plough's generous gift.

Of the almost 400,000 visitors this past year, more than 144,000 were children who came for free art and music classes and tours this year—unquestionably a record for a museum of our size. We are interested that teachers and parents arrange for their students to take part in Museum programs because they are confident that their students receive stimulating education in the arts from qualified instructors and guides. During the year, the staff and volunteer Docents have been evaluating the tour program with assistance from area teachers and national educational specialists as a part of their continuing effort to maintain its quality and relevance.

This year, the Museum continued to develop new educational services. Saturday classes were divided into two semesters, providing an opportunity for new students to take advantage of these free classes, thus increasing enrollment. Special summer classes for talented high school students, teachers and parents were augmented by art classes for very young children. These proved so successful they were repeated. Three highly popular film series were offered at the Museum in recognition that film is an important modern art form.

Significant exhibitions brought the pleasure of learning about new art forms and distant cultures, as well as the chance to honor Toledo's own artists.

In September, the Museum and the Confederation of Black Artists sponsored Black Artists of Toledo in a joint effort to recognize local black talent in the visual arts. Fall also brought the superb exhibition of prints and drawings by Charles Meryon, the French 19th century master, a traveling exhibition to which our Museum lent a substantial number of key works. Graphics '74 Spain, a print exhibition, was co-sponsored by the Committee for Relations with Toledo, Spain, who gave the Museum a striking print by Raphael Canogar from the exhibition.

A landmark retrospective exhibition, 70 Years of Steuben Glass, was organized by your Museum and opened its national tour here in November with the annual President's Council Dinner. Guests from the Steuben Company, the glass industry and other museums honored the Steuben achievement.

In January, our Museum, with the co-sponsorship of the Toledo Modern Art Group and support from the Ohio Arts Council, opened an exciting contemporary art exhibition, Image, Color and Form: Recent Paintings by Eleven Americans. Thanks to funding from the Toledo Modern Art Group, an anonymous donor, and matching funds from the National Endowment for the Arts, our Museum acquired four major paintings from this exhibition.

In February, also with the assistance of the Ohio Arts Council, and in cooperation with the Pilkington Glass Museum and the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, your Museum honored our area's most distinguished artist in glass, Dominick Labino, in an international exhibition of his works. At the opening of the exhibition Mr. Labino, the Museum's Honorary Curator of Glass, was given special recognition as a pioneer in the development of glass as a contemporary art form.

Following El Dorado, a glittering exhibition of ancient Colombian gold, and the 57th Annual Toledo Area Artists exhibition, two special small summer exhibitions closed the year: Art of the American West From the Collection of John and Margaret Hill; Dutch 19th Century Art from the Museum's Collection, focused on fine works of art not regularly on view at the Museum.

In addition to the more public-oriented activities this year, your Museum's staff worked on special projects, major exhibitions and building renovations, supported by funds from local donors and the National Endowment for the Arts, which will make our 75th anniversary celebration coming next year, an even more significant event.

New staff members were added to bring new ideas and talents to the Museum's programs. We welcome the new additions to our professional staff, as we honor those who are retiring. Kenneth Brockseker, Superintendent of the Museum for 30 years and a Museum employee for 47 years retired September 1. We shall miss him.

On June 7, 1975 we lost the Museum's second director, Blake-More Godwin, who had served the Museum for almost 43 years. He was director from 1927 to 1959, and subsequently until his death, had continued to serve as a vice president of the Museum and as chairman of the Libbey Estates.

A word about community support. Since its founding in 1901, Toledo's museum has served its community to a much greater extent than almost any other museum. This has not automatically insured wide or great support by the community. However, it has meant that as the Museum has increased its efforts to support itself by actively seeking community support through Museum membership and major contributions from individuals and corporations, the response has been gratifying and increasing. We still have a long way to go, however, if community giving is to support adequately the Museum's activities which in turn benefit the community.

We must continue to provide services to the community worthy of support, and the community in turn must continue to support the Museum if it values this great asset. Despite other and most welcome supplementary assistance, nothing can replace the fundamental and basic need for the community to provide for itself—that is, for the people of our city to provide for themselves.

VOLUNTEER GROUPS—HIGHLY IMPORTANT ASSETS

Among the most important assets of this Museum are the four groups of volunteers dedicated to the Museum's present and future needs.

The Endowment Development Committee is a vital group of Trustees and civic leaders who constantly seek new members of the President's Council and donors to the Endowment Fund. Under the leadership of Stanley Levison and his two co-chairmen, William Price and Ford Weber, this committee has obtained almost 100 new major donors in the past two years, and is now encouraging current donors to increase their contributions.

The Art Museum Aides are the force behind the annual Membership Drive obtaining over 1,000 new Museum members each year. These volunteers work year-round to inspire more broad support of the Museum's programs. The Aides also operate Collectors Corner, the art rental and sales gallery of the Museum, and take care of the plants throughout the Museum.

Friends of the Museum are successful workers who continually sell new memberships in the Museum. This group of volunteers also assist the Aides as hostesses at openings of major exhibitions.

More than 28,000 children and 2,100 adults have attended lectures on art and music given by the Art Museum Docents. They spend many hours in training to bring the Museum's collections alive and related to school curriculum from the first grade through high school. Further research is undertaken by the Docents to prepare for adult special interest groups.

The Museum is most appreciative of the time and effort these volunteers give so generously and is pleased to list their names on these pages.

An interpreter helps a Museum Docent give her lecture to a group of Japanese educators.

Otto Wittmann, Director, and Stanley Levison look at the installation of the 17th c. silver dressing table set given to the Museum by Mr. and Mrs. Levison.

ENDOWMENT DEVELOPMENT COMMITTEE

The Endowment Development Committee, whose main purpose is to increase major contributions to the Museum, is composed of Museum Trustees and other community leaders. This committee was successful in obtaining more than 50 new contributors to the Endowment Fund in 1975.

ART MUSEUM DOCENTS

The main purpose of the Art Museum Docents is to provide free educational programs for children and adults in the Galleries of The Toledo Museum of Art. Free tours and lectures to children and adults covering the collection, temporary exhibitions, and the history of music were attended by 28,000 children and 2,100 adults.

MEMBERSHIP VITAL TO MUSEUM PROGRAMS

The continued support of Museum membership helps provide the funds needed to serve the Toledo community. Approximately 7,000 members, representing a broad base of support, attest to the varied programs in art and music education for both children and adults, concerts, exhibitions, and many other activities.

One of the most popular programs started by your Museum nearly 75 years ago, continues to be one of the world's greatest cultural programs for young people. This past school year there have been 4,100 children attending the free Saturday art and music classes made possible by our members' contributions. These educational programs, available free to all the children in the Toledo area, are recognized as the most varied offered by any Museum in the country.

Museum members enjoy many benefits. Members receive invitations to previews of major exhibitions at the Museum, discounts on the purchase of series tickets for the performing arts programs, discounts in tuition for many adult art courses, as well as discounts on purchases at the sales desk. Members may also rent quality art from Collectors Corner and borrow books from the Museum's fine Art Reference Library. President's Council ($500) and Supporting ($100) members also benefit from reciprocal membership privileges at 13 other major museums in the United States.

Museum membership is available at $15, $25, $50, $100 and $500 categories, and all are family memberships. The Museum is proud of its members who contribute to the cultural heritage of The Toledo Museum of Art and its programs. Their names are listed by category on the following pages.
